Cityspace appointments reflect rail strategy

A new CEO and the appointment of a senior rail management team have highlighted Cityspace's fast-moving rail strategy.

Andrew Fraser has been appointed CEO by the Cityspace board in order to take the organisation to the next level; pivotal to this is the expansion of the company's established transport division to deliver complete digital network solutions for UK train operating companies.

Joseph Lubczynskij will head the new business development drive for rail while Elaine Wright joins the company as rail project manager.
